Dad brings a petition for modification of custody, alleging that since the prior order, which granted physical custody to Mom and liberal access to Dad, Mom has failed to supervise their 15-year-old child adequately and does not pay sufficient attention to his educational needs. Your client is an intelligent, articulate young man. He used to get "all As" but now gets Cs and an occasional D. Based on your thorough investigation, you believe Mom is so involved in her social life that she leaves your client alone many evenings. Your client apparently spends his time on the internet playing video games instead of doing his homework. You have met with and advised your client several times. He wants things to remain as they are. Based on these facts alone, which position among those listed below is most consistent with the Chief Judge's rule:

Modification is not warranted.

Modification is warranted, but my client wants to continue to live with his mother.

Section 7.2 of the Rules of the Chief Judge

Section 7.2 Function of the attorney for the child.

(a) As used in this part, "attorney for the child" means a law guardian appointed by family court pursuant to section 249 of the Family Court Act, or by the supreme court or a surrogate's court in a proceeding over which the family court might have exercised jurisdiction had such action or proceeding been commenced in family court or referred thereto.

(b) The attorney for the child is subject to the ethical requirements applicable to all lawyers, including but not limited to constraints on: ex-parte communication; disclosure of client confidences and attorney work product; conflicts of interest; and becoming a witness in the litigation.

(c) In juvenile delinquency and person in need of supervision proceedings, where the child is the respondent, the attorney for the child must zealously defend the child.

(d) In other types of proceedings, where the child is the subject, the attorney for the child must zealously advocate the child's position.

(1) In ascertaining the child's position, the attorney for the child must consult with and advise the child to the extent and in a manner consistent with the child's capacities, and have a thorough knowledge of the child's circumstances.

(2) If the child is capable of knowing, voluntary and considered judgment, the attorney for the child should be directed by the wishes of the child, even if the attorney for the child believes that what the child wants is not in the child's best interests. The attorney should explain fully the options available to the child, and may recommend to the child a course of action that in the attorney's view would best promote the child's interests.

(3) When the attorney for the child is convinced either that the child lacks the capacity for knowing, voluntary and considered judgment, or that following the child's wishes is likely to result in a substantial risk of imminent, serious harm to the child, the attorney for the child would be justified in advocating a position that is contrary to the child's wishes. In these circumstances, the attorney for the child must inform the court of the child's articulated wishes if the child wants the attorney to do so, notwithstanding the attorney's position.
